about the material that was developed in 3 European languages (Greek, English, Spanish) and was then taught to a group of adult learners of the 1st Second Chance School of Domokos.

This material was focused and designed for adult prisoners of Domokos Prison, and after the end of the project (in a few days), it will be freely available both on the project results platform, on the EPALE platform, and on the project website (<https://assist.e-ce.uth.gr>)

The participating educators of the 1st Second Chance School of Domokos, the professors of the University of Thessaly and participants from the University of Almeria (who connected for a long time and presented their own role in the program) bid farewell to the attendees and expressed their hope that this particular project would be the beginning of a larger project in which several inmate trainees from many countries of the European Union would participate.
